Red Bud

Raising Expectations

COMPLETE
COIL PROCESSING
SOLUTIONS

Farwest Steel has been supplying premium metal solutions to the western United States since 1956. They recently added another facility in Stockton, California to extend their reach into the southwest region of the country.

With the new expansion, Farwest Steel was in need of a coil processing line that could produce high tolerance material while also receiving outstanding customer service from the manufacturer. Red Bud Industries was able to provide them with a line that met their material requirements while also exceeding their service and support requests.

"Red Bud maintains a nice inventory of spare parts, and their ability to rapidly respond when we need service, with boots on the ground or over the phone, has been an improvement from what we were used to. A real added advantage is that the operation of the line is easily teachable."
